Logan has a reprint of J. Sullivan's letter on "missions" and this is the close of the letter here (this is a sheet of 55 minutes)

God a ruined race, now in their struggle at the threshold of infidelity. They turn to you for sympathy and for help: Shall they look in vain and be disappointed? Let the Universal response be No—no. Can you say, in the magnanimity of your souls: God, being our helper, we are able for the task of doing our share of spreading the gospel to the ends of the world? If so, shrink not, dear brethren, beneath this stupendous Atlas. God is your strength: therefore, with a faith, and heroism, that knows no surrender, nerve your minds for the giant effort. And let the magnificent glory, that shall crown your victory, give immortal strength, to your broad shoulders, to sustain the mighty load.

Already the sound of victory, is coming in loud swelling notes over the din of the battle field. The shouts of your brethren in foreign lands are heard rolling across the mighty waters. Will you not then help to push on the triumphs, until our united hosts shall be seen coming up from the Wilderness, Shining as the morning, "fair as the Moon, clear as the Sun, and terrible as an army with banners?" The the Redeemed millions of justified Spirits, and Angelic armies, will rejoice to behold those triumphs in a glorious eternity.

Then the throng of the Redeemed, and shining legions of Angels will join the shoutings of Universal triumph. Saying blessing and honor, and power and glory: unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever, and ever, Amen.

J. Sullivan
